"Jason's message about the 'audience' affected me to the core. It improved the way I see myself at work and those I come in contact with. As an older employee, it hit home that the younger generation employees need me to mentor and teach, and they expect that. I might not know how to use all this new fancy technology, but I can lead, pass on my experiences and explain the impact and consequences of our decisions. It also helped me understand that I can and do add value to the organization."
