About Matt Britton

Matt Britton is America's leading expert on the millennial generation having consulted for over half of the Fortune 500 over the past two decades. Matt's unique ability to connect the dots between the new consumer culture of today and the business trends of tomorrow is what separates him and offers unique value for his clients.

Matt's best-selling book titled YouthNation, which debuted at #1 on Amazon's business book list has created the modern day roadmap for corporations large and small alike to approach a generation with power and influence unlike any other emerging demographic in history.

In 2002 Matt founded MRY, a digital and social media marketing services agency, which he would grow from a one-person startup to a global powerhouse with over 500 employees. Over the course of Matt's 14-year career at MRY, the agency he founded helped prominent Global corporations including Microsoft, Procter & Gamble, Ford Motors, Visa, whom Matt helped lead into the social media era.

Matt is the premier global keynote speakers at the major conference and corporate events around the world. During the past year, Matt has been hired by corporations including Microsoft, General Motors, Subaru, Citibank, Facebook, HP, and Procter & Gamble to inspire corporations as well as arm them with practical know-how on how to embrace change today!

Matt's latest venture, Suzy, being touted as Siri for brands, Matt and his team are bringing the voice of real consumers directly to brands at scale and at the speed of culture and touts investors such as NBA star Kevin Durant. Suzy helps companies like Netflix, Coca-Cola, Procter & Gamble, Johnson & Johnson, Citibank, Verizon, Nintendo and Nestle, among others, validate critical assumptions so they can focus on creating compelling new products, developing effective marketing strategies, and validating direct offers that increase conversion, improve path-to-purchase and drive growth.

- How social is driving the end of TV as we know it – and why the Kardashians could be bigger than the Beatles

In 1964, the Beatles' appearance on Ed Sullivan was a watershed moment in America. "At that time, if you wanted to be relevant, you went on Ed Sullivan," said Matt Britton, CEO of online community Crowdtap, at Social Media Week in New York on Wednesday (March 1). "It signified a Golden Era of TV. There were four channels you could watch and few other things for families to do. That approach to media lasted 35 years. If you had a viable product and a checkbook, you could write a check and get on TV."

NBA star Kevin Durant is the latest backer of Suzy, a marketing tech platform based in New York. The Golden State Warriors forward made the investment as part of a $5 million funding round. "Suzy looks for partners and investors that look at the world in the same way as our team and that can offer a differentiated perspective on the business landscape," Suzy CEO Matt Britton told The New York Business Journal. "Kevin Durant and Rich Kleiman from The Durant Company fit that mold perfectly and we are thrilled to have them as a partner."
